

AMENDMENTS TO THE DRAWINGS:

The attached drawing(s) include changes to FIGS. 2, 18 and 19. In FIG. 2, Microprocessor 921 was changed to Microprocessor 941.

In FIGS. 18 and 19, "251" and "261" were changed to "351" and "361."

Approval of these changes to the Drawings is respectfully requested.

REMARKS

In accordance with the foregoing, the Specification and claims 9, 18 and 22 have been amended. FIGS. 2, 18 and 19 have also been amended. Claims 1-30 are pending and under consideration.

The drawing and claim objections are overcome by the present amendments.

The rejections based on Narui are respectfully traversed. Using independent claim 1 as an example, this claim recites displaying a main window, including a step start button to initiate a sequence of at least first and second display setting adjustment windows in which first and second display setting adjustments are made. In contrast, Narui does not teach a step start button. Instead, this reference teaches a screen 304 is invoked in two situations (1) when the monitor is connected for the first time and (2) when a user changes monitor parameters using an application produced by another manufacture. Narui, col. 3, ln. 9-14. Therefore, it is not a step start button that initiates the sequence.

Furthermore, dependent claim 9 recites a display button corresponding to a first setting group including a resolution setting, a brightness setting, a contrast setting, and a clock and phase setting; a geometry button corresponding to a second setting group including a position setting; and a color button corresponding to a third setting group including a calibration setting, and a color temperature setting, wherein when each menu button is selected, a window to adjust the display setting belonging to the corresponding setting group is opened. Thus, the first through third setting groups are recited with particular settings. The Examiner relies upon Fukumoto. However, this reference only teaches the general idea of having groups of related items together, without disclosing the particular groupings recited in the claim.

The remaining references do not overcome these deficiencies. Accordingly, withdrawal of the rejections is requested.

There being no further outstanding objections or rejections, it is submitted that the application is in condition for allowance. An early action to that effect is courteously solicited.

Finally, if there are any formal matters remaining after this response, the Examiner is requested to telephone the undersigned to attend to these matters.
